AtCor Medical Holdings Limited (ASX:ACG) – Commitments Test Entity – Third Quarter Report

AtCor Medical today released its quarterly cash flow report for the period ending 31 March 2009.

Cash at quarter end was $3,921,000, up $997,000 from 31 December 2008. Net operating cash inflows of $924,000 were booked, after cash collections of $4,581,000. Collections of $9.2 million have been recorded in the year to date.

The increase in cash flows results largely from payments for sales to pharmaceutical customers in the previous quarter. Such fluctuations are to be expected between reporting periods for capital sales businesses such as AtCor.

During the quarter, a director repaid a portion of his outstanding loan from AtCor, providing $100,000 in cash to the company. The loan was made prior to the company's initial public offering to exercise options over ordinary shares.

Operating cash outflows for the 9 months to 31 March 2009 were $235,000, compared to $3.122 million for the previous corresponding period.
